GoAfican App

Uganda, the pearl of Africa, is blessed with diversified cultures. Lots of myths and proverbs about food have lived on through centuries. Mothers pass on skills and recipes to their daughters verbally in kitchens and gardens. Behold, the modern age is upon us, fast foods are our everyday meals. Young people have forgotten recipes and myths about food. Only a countable population of the young ones now knows how to prepare these traditionally cherished dishes. They end up eating the junk and unhealthy food they eat everyday all year round.

GoAfrican seeks to bring long forgotten and unknown recipes to the palms and fingertips of the young. We are hoping that with this knowledge so readily and easily available, people will find our ways and start eating and preparing healthy food.

Without culture, we are nothing. Food is part of that culture

In this technological world, everything is going mobile. Thankfully, Smartphones have broken into our market and at least 1 in 2 youth owns one. The price of devices running the great Android OS is affordable.

HOW THE APP WORKS

The app displays a list of common local recipes. Users can add their own separate recipes. The recipes are saved to a local SQLite database for viewing offline.

A user can comment or review a given recipe. They can make inquiries and seek clarifications in the comment. One can search for a recipe; share it over social network or save it.
